It was Lily's first day in second grade. She wore her favorite yellow dress and carried her new backpack. When she arrived at school, she met her new teacher, Miss Ramos. Miss Ramos smiled and said, "Welcome to second grade, Lily!" Lily felt a little nervous but was excited too.

After the morning bell rang, Miss Ramos asked the students to sit in a circle. She introduced each one of them and asked them to share something they like to do. Lily shared that she loves reading books. The class clapped for her, and Lily felt happy.

Later, Miss Ramos gave the class some crayons and a drawing paper. "You can draw your favorite things!" she said. Lily drew a picture of a big tree, her dog, and a rainbow. When the class was done, they showed their drawings to each other.

At the end of the day, Miss Ramos gave each student a sticker for their good work. Lily was so proud of her drawing, and she couldn't wait to come back to school the next day.
